the orthodox view of economic policy holds that public deliberation sets the goals or ends and then experts select the means to implement these goals this assumes that experts are no more than trustworthy servants of the public interest david m levy and sandra j peart examine the historical record to consider cases in which experts were trusted with disastrous results such as eugenics the regulatory use of security ratings and central economic planning this history suggests that experts have not only the public interest but also their own interests to consider the authors then recover and extend an alternative view of economic policy that subjects experts proposals to further discussion resulting in transparency and ensuring that the public obtains the best insights of experts in economics while avoiding pitfalls such as expert bias

1 warren j samuels the study of economics as discourse requires a perspective that focuses on the relationships among knowledge or truth discourse or language and meaning central to this task is the recognition that the conduct of economic analysis uses words and that words embody meanings that are applied to the object of study but do not necessarily derive from that object although they define that object for us knowledge economists are engaged in efforts to understand and explain the economy in the pursuit of this knowledge they have attempted to make coherent the respects in which belief is to be accepted as knowledge or the senses in which this knowledge has the quality of truth the field of methodology in economics parallels the fields of epistemology and philosophy of science in the attempt to make sense of and to prescribe the terms on which efforts at knowledge may be accepted as true or the terms on which statements can be accepted as knowledge the conduct of such methodological inquiry typically treats economics as a science 1 2 economics as discourse engaged in the pursuit of truth as an epistemological category though there have almost always been economists who were skeptical of the status of economics as a science and the pursuit of knowledge is only one of three putative functions of economics the other two being psychic balm and social control
